Unlike other games in the same genre, Magic Orbz is controlled using a standard gamepad, meaning it's accessible for anyone who has a gamepad and owns a computer with a joystick port, as well as being playable with a mouse. Magic Orbz also benefits from dynamic weather effects, with water turning into ice, snow and rain in the game, and rain not even coming in . Magic Orbz uses a single-player mode, which plays like a simple Arkanoid, with the goal of destroying the blocks and reaching the exit as quickly as possible. In addition to the single-player mode, Magic Orbz also features a co-op mode in which two players can play against each other, with players controlling their individual portions of the screen using a keyboard and mouse. In the single-player mode, a player can choose the size of the block they wish to smash. The game begins with the player at the top of the screen, and as they progress down, the level heightens. The player is free to move left and right as they smash their blocks, and can even move up or down. When a block is smashed, another block of the same colour can be smashed . The game progresses at a set speed, and once a player smashes every block on the screen, the game ends and the player is given a score based on how fast they were able to finish. There is a set amount of time a player can play the game, after which the game automatically ends. If the game is not over after the specified time, then the player is awarded the number of seconds they had left to play. When a player is holding the left or right mouse buttons, a power-up is available. The power-ups consist of moving forward, backwards, and diagonally, clearing out all blocks in a given row, or even clearing out all blocks on the entire screen. Both the single-player and co-op modes are divided into areas of difficulty, with the higher the difficulty, the longer the level. Areas range from Easy, Medium and Hard, with Easy
